ABSTRACT

The two lists in this 1990 guide contain basic information on almost 200 journals, newsletters, yearbooks, and magazines that consistently include materials about reading. The first list provides such information as: address; frequency of publication; type of publication; and circulation. The second list, presented as a matrix, provides information such as the audience addressed, types of material published, processes for obtaining, reviewing, and selecting articles for publication, and submission guidelines. How to Use the Contributor's Guide to Periodicals in Reading

Scope

The two lists that follow include basic information about almost two hundred periodicals that consistently carry materials about reading. The information was provided by the editors of those periodicals in response to a questionnaire.

Using This Guide

Every periodical included in this guide appears alphabetically on each of the two lists. The first list offers information about editor, address, and editorial procedures. The second list is presented as a matrix primarily because of the compactness of that format. To use this guide most efficiently, please first read the sample questionnaire following the list of periodicals. Editors' responses to starred items on the questionnaire are reported in the matrix, and responses to unstarred items are reported in the first list. Quotation marks in the first list indicate comments of individual editors.

This guide in no way reflects advocacy or endorsement by the International Reading Association of any periodical except, of course, for the four IRA journals included.
